A Resolution to Preserve the Black Sea Grain Initiative

- WHEREAS, The Black Sea Grain Deal expired and Russia hasn't returned to the deal despite pressure from several countries and the United Nations;
- WHEREAS, Prior to the deal, grain and staple food prices spiked during the Russia-Ukraine conflict preventing Ukraine, a leading exporter of grain, from exporting via the Black Sea. The deal, allowing safe exports of grain and other food products, was vital in lowering the prices of grain and food during the war between Russia and Ukraine and led to tens of millions of tonnes of grain being exported. A substantial portion of which went to developing countries;
- WHEREAS, Without the deal, Ukraine can no longer safely export through the Black Sea. This will likely decrease grain and food exports, ultimately increasing prices which would be especially harmful to poorer countries;
- WHEREAS, Russia has expressed that they would consider returning to the deal if their demands for agriculture and fertilizer exports are met. Moscow claims that restrictions on payments, logistics and insurance have hampered their shipments;
- RESOLVED, That the Congress urge Russia to return to the Black Sea Grain Deal; and be it
- FURTHER RESOLVED, That if Russia complies, the U.S. will remove all restrictions pertaining to payments, logistics and insurance and will push members of the United Nations to do so as well.

- WHEREAS, In response to the military coup, many resistance groups have banded to battle the oppressive regimes; now, therefore, be it
- RESOLVED, The United States will provide $100 million worth of humanitarian assistance, such as food and medical supplies, to the National Unity Government and Chin National Front resistance groups, and be it
